Online Programs with Residencies for MUST Students

January 2025

The University of Charleston (UC) has extensive expertise in online learning. Over half of our currently enrolled students are fully online. The following graduate programs in cybersecurity and mental health counseling may fit the educational and career development needs of MUST students.

Each program will incorporate a U.S. residency experience during which time students will earn credit hours toward their degree, while being immersed in U.S. cultural, economic, and social aspects of their field of study. Students will travel to the U.S. on an F-1 visa.

Residencies will be held at the University of Charleston's campus. Students will utilize UC classrooms, dining facilities, residence halls, and recreation venues. Activities will also occur in downtown Charleston and various venues throughout the state.

The following pages provide information on UC's Master of Science of Cybersecurity and Master of Arts in Mental Health Counseling. Program descriptions, curriculum, completion time, tuition, residency, and residency cost information are provided for each program.

Master of Science in Cybersecurity

As businesses and organizations move to a more digital presence with such items as transactions and storage, professionals are in high demand to counter cyber threats and safeguard customer information. This program helps you position yourself for a leadership role in this field, with the knowledge and skills to establish a long-term and secure career. Students will gain the ability to strategically implement security programs, policies, and information management, and be able to analyze the demands of a system's security. You will learn practiced methods for protecting data integrity and confidentiality, and how to integrate various complex concepts in organizational, legal, and technological aspects of cybersecurity.
